voices of marginality is theoretically grounded in the theology of the diaspora which according to fernando f segovia has been forged in the migratory experience of american hispanics this theological perspective views judean exiles 587 b c e and contemporary mexican migrants as part of a recurring diasporic human experience the present analysis reads across from the exile and return envisioned in the poetry of second isaiah 40 55 to the corridos ballads about mexican immigration to the united states more specifically the diasporic categories of exile and return in second isaiah inform our reading of exile and return in the mexican immigrant corridos conversely the rhetorical ability of these corridos to transmit a collective mexican identity for immigrants in the united states provides a compelling lens for understanding the images of exile and return in second isaiah ultimately both literary productions reflect voices of marginality across modern history refugees have articulated their experiences and wishes against the backdrop of mass displacement brought about by world wars civil war revolution population exchange decolonisation and state formation men and women displaced in different sites from different backgrounds and at different times have played for high stakes they deliberated about what to say and to whom and they sought expected and effected a response refugee voices in modern global history places refugees at the centre of modern history it demonstrates how ordinary refugees understood their experiences of displacement and engaged with institutions that sought solutions to their predicament ranging widely across global contexts to establish what refugees had to say and to whom it shows them to have consistently been purposeful actors making it possible to transcend conventional and hackneyed depictions of crisis by adopting the term refugeedom the authors show how the voices and perspectives of refugees can be incorporated alongside the power dynamics associated with the multiple incarnations of the refugee regime that managed refugees and articulated solutions to their predicament extensive archival research across three continents makes it possible to explain in comparative terms the significance attached to the encounters between refugees and officials in modern europe south asia the middle east east asia and sub indian diaspora social gerontology nursing multiculturalism education in historic and ethnographic accounts of indians living in diaspora the elderly seem to receive much less attention than the new generation and its progress prosperity and success using critical pedagogy approach this book attempts to close that gap by focusing on the voices of the punjabi bengali sindhi and gujarati diasporic indians elderly living in five countries learning to listen to the voices of these seniors may enable professors teachers students policy makers and parents to work towards building democratic societies are reports of the death of conventional fieldwork in anthropology greatly exaggerated this book takes a critical look at the latest developments and key issues in fieldwork the nature of locality itself is problematic for both research subjects and fieldworkers on the grounds that it must now be maintained and represented in relation to widening and fragmenting social frames and networks such developments have raised questions concerning the nature of ethnographic presence and scales of comparison from the social space of a cybercafe to cities in india the uk and south africa among others this book features a wide range of ethnographic studies that provide new ways of looking at the concepts of locality and site it shows that rather than taking key fieldwork processes such as globalization and mobility for granted anthropologists are well placed to examine and critique the totalizing assumptions behind these notions the question of population migration and diaspora transnationalism in the age of globalization is an area of social sciences deserving much more attention than it has received this book deals with the advent of new ideological currents based on an assumed quote clash of civilizations quote increasingly popular in social economic and political discourses in this regard applicable oriental literature on migration and diaspora formation is comparatively older than what has been produced in the west in recent years thus deserving careful consideration for instance when dealing with transnational communities the concept of qabiil kinship allegiance as a central organizational factor dominates western scholarship instead this book favors taking both western and non western approaches into consideration in order to achieve deeper and richer understanding of the transnational global diaspora condition in order to surmount the dichotomy of essentialist versus no essentialist frames the epistemological approach instrumentalized in this work follows an emancipatory method critically engaging both approaches furthermore the book proposes a theoretical framework analytically connecting western and non western social inquiry hence we should note emile durkheim s scheme of modern society transformation from quote mechanical to organic solidarity quote was preceded by ibn khaldun s binary scheme distinguishing quote badawa
