in a time of intensified global white supremacist and patriarchal violence anti racist feminist movements and analyses have never been more vital women of colour are at the forefront of these struggles worldwide but are white feminists really by their side despite a rich history of black and postcolonial critiques of racist and imperial feminist politics racism still exists within contemporary british feminism to explain why terese jonsson examines the history of feminism over the last forty years she argues that black feminism s role in shaping the movement has been marginalised through narratives which repeatedly position white women at the centre of the story from the women s liberation movement in the 1970s to today analysing the ways in which whiteness continues to pervade feminist literature as well as feminist debates in the liberal media jonsson demonstrates that despite an increased attention to race intersectionality and difference stories told by white feminists are shaped by their desire to maintain an innocent position towards racism when children of color enter their classrooms each year many often encounter low expectations disconnection and other barriers to their success in the innocent classroom alexs pate traces the roots of these disparities to pervasive negative stereotypes which children are made aware of before they even walk through the school door the cumulative weight of these stereotypes eventually takes shape as guilt which inhibits students engagement learning and relationships and hurts their prospects for the future if guilt is the primary barrier for children of color in the classroom then the solution according to pate is to create an innocent classroom that neutralizes students guilt and restores their innocence to do so readers will embark on a relationship construction project in which they will deepen their understanding of how children of color are burdened with guilt discover students good or the motivation behind their behaviors and develop strategic responses to that good and nurture protect and advocate for students innocence ultimately students will reclaim their innocence and begin to make choices that will lead to their success teachers will renew their commitment to their students and the current ineffective system can give way to one that reflects a more enlightened understanding of who our children are and what they are capable of
