steps on life's journey a beginner's guide is a how-to guide for the new believer in Jesus Christ. It teaches you about the important stepping stones to build your relationship with your Lord and Savior through the use of Scripture and the author's own personal testimony. It walks through beginning faith-building basics such as dispelling common myths and misconceptions about your faith, preparing for spiritual battle with the armor of God, tithing and serving, and witnessing to others. Each chapter heading is a question, and the chapter answers that question in an easy-to-read fashion. Each chapter then ends with a summarized answer of the question.

In narrative theology and the hermeneutical virtues, humility, patience, and prudence, Jacob L. Goodson offers a philosophical analysis of the arguments and tendencies of Hans Frei S. and Stanley Hauerwas. Narrative theology names a way of doing theology and thinking theologically that is part of a greater movement called the return to Scripture. The return to Scripture movement makes a case for Scripture as the proper object of study within Christian theology, philosophy of religion, and religious ethics. While thinkers within this movement agree that Scripture is the proper object of study within philosophy and religious studies, there is major disagreement over what the word narrative describes. In narrative theology, the Yale theologian Hans Frei argues that because Scripture is the proper object of study within Christian theology and the philosophy of religion, Scripture must be the exclusive object of study. To think theologically means paying as close attention as possible to the details of the biblical narratives in their literal sense, different from Frei's contentions. The Christian ethicist at Duke University, Stanley Hauerwas, claims that if Scripture is the proper object of study within Christian theology, then the category of narrative teaches us that we ought to give our scholarly attention to the interpretations and performances of Scripture. Hauerwas emphasizes the continuity between the biblical narratives and the traditions of the church. This disagreement is best described as a hermeneutical one. Frei thinks that the primary place where interpretation happens is in the text. Hauerwas thinks that the primary place where interpretation occurs is in the community of interpreters. In order to move beyond the dichotomy found between Frei's and Hauerwas's work but to remain within the return to Scripture movement, Goodson constructs three hermeneutical virtues: humility, patience, and prudence. These virtues help professors and scholars within Christian theology, philosophy of religion, and religious ethics maintain objectivity in their fields of study.

The Bible is the most successful book ever written. For well over 1,000 years, it has been the most widely circulated of all written works, and it has affected the culture, language, and art of more people than any other book has done. In turn, every age has adapted and used the Bible for its own purposes, influencing its shape, appearance, and language. This is a narrative of the Bible as an artefact, an account of how it has changed, evolved, and survived during its extraordinary journey through history.
